If you own or owned a property with Weyerhaeuser brand hardboard siding, you may be entitled to monetary compensation.

A Court-approved settlement involving Weyerhaeuser brand hardboard siding pays qualified current and former owners of homes or other structures for damages associated with their siding. Call toll free or visit the website to request a claim form. The first deadline for claim forms is approaching.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE

You are eligible to file a claim form if you own or owned a structure in the United States on which Weyerhaeuser brand hardboard siding has been installed from January 1, 1981 through December 31, 1999.

The Settlement established a claims process to pay money for all valid claims for certain damage to siding, including the types of damage listed in the box.

Siding damage from improper design or installation is excluded. There is a compensation formula to determine how much money, if any, you are entitled to receive.

HOW TO IDENTIFY WEYERHAEUSER HARDBOARD SIDING

You may ask the builder of your property, or remove a piece of the siding to see whether AHA 10, AHA 20 or AHA 02 is stamped on the back, or take it to your local building supply store, which may be able to assist you. Weyerhaeuser hardboard siding was made from wood fiber, wax and resin, distributed in both lap (board) and panel (sheet) applications, and was available in various external textures designed to look like conventional wood siding.

Damage that may qualify for compensation includes:

- Buckling
- Swelling
- Sponginess
- Physical Degradation
- Surface Welting
- Thickness Swell
- Delamination
- Edge Checking
- Wax Bleed
- Raised or Popped Fibers
